PREFACE

THE generous co-operation of the service men, their relatives and a number of the county's citizens who were interested in having preserved for the future a record of the county's activities in the World War has made possible the publication of this book.

The compilation has been a task accompanied by many and varied difficulties and the publisher desires to thank all who contributed in any way to its successful conclusion. A determined effort was made to secure the photo and record of every service man from the county. To this end extensive newspaper publicity was given; thousands of letters were mailed out and numerous personal interviews sought. In every instance where it has been at all possible during four months of concerted effort to secure the necessary data that soldier's photo and record appear in the book.

In response to requests for photographs almost every possible type of portraits was received from faded snapshots to enlargements and it was necessary to rephotograph each in order to secure uniformity in size and proper grouping. Included in the volume are the men and women who entered the service from Cass County whether or not their home is in the county at the present time and also those who have moved into the county since their return from war. There are in addition a few who entered the service from other counties and states but whose homes are in Cass County.

INTRODUCTION

NOT often does a state have the chance to fight for a principle really vital to the human race. When such an opportunity comes, a commonwealth lives its heroic age. In April, 1917, fate gave Iowa her chance to strike a blow for human rights and democracy, and her response was noble. From Cass County nearly a thousand men, the flower of her manhood, entered the service. Many of these boys helped stop the mad rush of the Hun at Belleau Wood; they drove him back at Chateau Thierry and Cantigny. Like veterans they fought and won in Lorraine, at St. Mihiel and in the bitter struggle of Argonne-Meuse. They successfully met the challenge of the most powerful armies the world ever saw. They shared in the most significant victory of all history. By a devotion that has won the admiration of the civilized world, they helped make possible a new and nobler life for humanity and a truer brotherhood of man. We owe it to the future,—we owe it to these men, to preserve the memory of their heroism.

To
the sons of Cass County, Iowa who valiantly served and died for the cause of human liberty
this book is dedicated

Company M, One Hundred Sixty-Eighth Infantry, Rainbow Division

In March, 1917, when war clouds were appearing on the horizon the attention of many Atlantic boys was turned toward the impending struggle and anxious to have a part they petitioned the Adjutant General of Iowa for the organization of a National Guard company here. Owing to the fact that the Third Iowa Regiment was filled the application was denied. A few days later Raymond Coker hearing that Company M was recruiting to war strength went to Red Oak and enlisted in that organization on April 4, 1917, two days before war was declared.

Shortly thereafter Lieutenant Briggs and Sergeant Hoke of Company M came to Atlantic and recruited a number more of the local boys. They were examined by Dr. C. B. Burke and sworn in at his office on April 12, 1917. Several others joined them on April 18 and shortly after non-commissioned officers of Company M began coming from Red Oak twice a week to drill the local detachment.

On July 4 Company M was mobilized at Red Oak and the Atlantic boys went into camp there. During the following six weeks they had their first real touch of army life; drilling intensively under the direction of Captain Ross they were too busy to be troubled with homesickness or have any worries about the future. Then on August 18 the company was ordered to the Fair Grounds at Des Moines where equipment was issued and the organization of the regiment completed. It was not until the arrival of orders to equip the regiment for immediate overseas duty that the boys realized they were to be sent to France. The news was received with great enthusiasm for all were anxious to get into action and have their part in the struggle.

Passes home were issued only in extreme cases and as soon as the news spread that the regiment was to go to France the fair grounds was the mecca for visitors from all parts of the state. Hundreds of the home-folks witnessed the big regimental parade staged during the fair.

On the evening of September 10, 1917, several hundred lads in khaki might have been seen lounging about Machinery Hall in full equipment waiting for the order to entrain. Throughout the long cold night they waited and then early in the morning the trains arrived and the Third Battalion piled aboard and were off on the long journey to France. Waving cheery farewells they bade good-bye to old Iowa and confidently started out on the biggest adventure of their lives.

Arriving at Camp Mills on the afternoon of September 13 they marched two miles out to the fields where their camp was to be pitched—the field as yet uncleaned of brush and weeds. They slept out in the open and the next morning set about clearing their camp and setting it in order. Then the steady grind of training began and for the next month they had strenuous drill day after day. During this time the remainder of overseas equipment was issued after which they were reviewed by Secretary of War Baker. While at Camp Mills all of the boys were granted passes to New York City. Ray Phares was the only Atlantic man, however, permitted a pass to his home, being called there by the serious illness of his mother.

All the men were eager to get started to France and at last the happy day came. On October 18 the entire regiment went aboard the U. S. S. President Grant at Hoboken and at midnight slipped out of the harbor. But their joy was short lived for on the fourth day out engine trouble developed and it was necessary to turn back. They arrived back at Camp Mills in a pouring rainstorm on the night of October 27. The camp was flooded but the boys made the most of it and began the old camp life again.

After a couple of weeks more drilling the third battalion sailed again on the afternoon of November 14 aboard the White Star liner Celtic. A stop was made at Halifax and one day was spent in the harbor at Dublin on account of submarines operating in that vicinity. The battalion landed at Liverpool on December 1 and boarded trains immediately for Winchester where they spent a week in a rest camp. On the afternoon of December 8 they went aboard a channel steamer at Southampton, arriving in Le Havre the following morning. A few days were spent at the rest camp there and on December 11 the troops entrained for Rimaucourt in the Lorraine sector, arriving there two days later.

Here the company got their first touch of the real hardships of war. Although the weather was very cold the men were billeted in barns and for several weeks they were unable to get supplies of any kind. Despite insufficient clothing and very meagre food supplies training continued through all kinds of weather. French officers were attached and during these long dreary weeks the boys received their beginning lessons in trench warfare. It was under these conditions that the Cass County boys spent their first Christmas in France and needless to say there were many evidences of homesickness.

It was at Rimaucourt that the first death in the company occurred. Norbert Wilson of Elliott succumbed to an attack of scarlet fever on January 5, 1918, after a short illness.

On January 31 the company marched to Voisines, where they camped until February 12. They proceeded to Rolanpont and then went by train to near Baccarat where they were billeted in a village until the evening of March 8. On the evening of the eighth the company marched up to a position just back of the front line and early the following morning went into the trenches. Company M along with Company F went over the top at 5 p. m. after a four-hour preparatory bombardment. It was during this bombardment that Cecil Conley and Fred Turner were killed. The raid, lasting an hour, was successful and several prisoners were taken. The company returned to the rear camps that night.

Company M suffered several casualties during this first raid and the loss of their comrades while sobering the men made them more anxious to get back into action and get another chance at the Huns.

Three days later the company went back into the lines for permanent duty, and during the months that followed spent eight days at a time in the trenches and were then relieved for eight days. Lloyd Morrill was killed on March 18 and Max Hubbell was killed instantly by our own barrage on May 15.

The regiment was relieved on June 20 after spending three months in the front lines and then proceeded to Thayon where they entrained for the Champagne front, unloading near Suippes on June 23. They started for the lines on July 1 and went into the second line of trenches on the evening of July 4. Here they remained on the defensive without much excitement until the night of July 14 when the German offensive was launched along the entire western front.

For four hours our boys witnessed what is reputed to have been the most terrific bombardment put over by the Germans during the entire war, but the German infantry push failed to reach the second lines and their offensive in that sector promptly failed. The 168th remained here until July 20th when they were withdrawn and hurried to the Chateau Thierry sector, going into the lines near Fere-en-Tardenois on July 26. On July 28th they were engaged in some of the fiercest fighting of the war which resulted in the capture of Sergy and Hill 212. None of the Cass County boys were killed in this engagement but several were wounded, among them Irmin Spence, Earl Kirk, Harold Kjar, and Paul Kirk.

After continuous fighting for more than a week the regiment was relieved on August 5 and then camped for ten days in woods near Fere-en-Tardenois. Here much sickness developed and many were sent back to the hospitals. After a long march the regiment detrained at La Ferte on August 20 for Chaumont-la-Ville where it was expected they would rest for a month. But after new equipment had been issued and replacements received they started on a ten-day march to the St. Mihiel sector.

The regiment went into the lines again on the evening of September 11 and over the top the following morning. The 42nd Division was in the central part of the advance with the third battalion of the 168th, taking the brunt of the fight, and there were many casualties during the day. Phil Brooks of Atlantic fell in the early morning conflict. The regiment reached its objective ahead of time and dug in. Here they remained on the defensive until September 27 when they were relieved and after resting a few days started for the Argonne, going by truck a part of the way and marching the remainder.

October 12 found our boys again in the lines participating in the offensive movement that stopped only after the Germans had been driven back to Sedan. The regiment was relieved on November 10th and received the news of the armistice while on the march to the rear. Though worn out by weeks of continued fighting the men were not too tired to celebrate the victory.

The troops went into camp near Buzaney where they remained until November 19 when the start on the long hike to Germany was made. The route of march led them into Belgium and through Luxembourg. They rested over Thanksgiving at Eischen, Luxembourg. Thanksgiving was a big day for the men enjoyed the first real feed in many months. This Thanksgiving dinner was a gift from the ladies at Atlantic and it brought joy and happiness to the hearts of many weary soldiers that day.

The march was resumed on December 1 and after many long tiresome days of hiking they arrived at Nieder Zissen, Germany, on December 16. Good billets were provided here and the boys settled down to comfortable living once again. In February the third battalion was moved to Nieder Breisig on the Rhine where it remained until starting for home.

Though comfortably located in Germany it was but a few weeks until a spirit of unrest appeared and the boys began wondering when they would start homeward. It was not until April that the long-looked-for orders arrived and on April 9 the regiment entrained for the good old U. S. A., arriving in Brest on April 12. Six days later they sailed for home on the Leviathan, arriving in Hoboken April 25. After a few days at Camp Merritt they started on the last lap of the journey west, arriving in Des Moines on the evening of May 14. The following afternoon thousands of the home-folks cheered the boys as they marched through Des Moines in their last regimental parade, and during the three days that followed our youthful heroes were fused back into civilian life.

The nation will ever be grateful to the men of the Forty-Second Division including our own Company M boys for the magnificent manner in which they upheld the fighting traditions of their country on that far away battle line. Their record will henceforth forever constitute one of the most brilliant pages in the military history of America. Modern warfare in its tragic intensity has little of the glamour and glory of battle in the days gone by; the stern demands of the modern military machine require the full measure of physical endurance and privation on the part of the individual and few people except those who experienced it can ever appreciate the sacrifices of that band of fifty-one boys of Company M who went out of Cass County in the early days of the war.

Mere boys, most of them, they shouldered their guns and after a few brief weeks of training crossed three thousand miles of water to a foreign land and took their place among the first American troops to participate in that tragic line where soldiers of many nations were locked in a death struggle. Day after day of heavy marching under the weight of a ponderous equipment; at times very scantily clothed and fed; night after night of wearisome waiting and watching in wet and muddy trenches; the exposure suffered during weeks of inclement weather all added to the hardships and terrors of battle, with the uncertainty of life itself predominant and the homesickness incident to foreign conditions and surroundings made the existence of our boys anything but fascinating.

The people of Cass County owe a debt of gratitude to the boys of Company M which can only be paid by the appreciation of the services they performed for their country. Some of them gave their lives; others will bear physical impediments throughout the years; they all gave two of the best years of their life to the cause of human liberty everywhere. Financial remuneration cannot compensate for such service even were it desired but they and their friends can always have the satisfaction of knowing that when their country's call came they answered quickly and gave splendid, heroic service to the end. The citizens of Cass County can well be proud of the boys of Company M.

The Boys of '61-'68

Cass County was at its comparative infancy in 1861 at the outbreak of the Civil War. But its citizenship was intensely loyal to the Union and the call for troops received a hearty response.

Compared with the upward of a thousand men who entered the world war from this county the record it made in the civil war was one in which it may well feel proud. Cass County's population in the period from '61 to '65 was only a fraction of what it is at present. The voting strength of the county was about 350. Today it has about 4400. Yet Cass County sent to the Union army approximately 160 men. Of that number twenty-two gave their lives, five falling on the field of battle. These five were Captain J. C. Brown, George Rose, Patrick Archer, M. L. Littlefield and William R. Terry.

Practically all of Cass County's soldiers in the civil war served in the Fourth and Twenty-third Regiments of Iowa infantry. Company I of the Twenty-third Iowa Infantry was composed entirely of Cass County men.

Just as the One Hundred and Sixty-eighth of the Rainbow Division in the world war has brought undying glory to Iowa, so did the Fourth and Twenty-third Regiments bring fame to the commonwealth in the sixties.

The Fourth Regiment was mustered in at Council Bluffs in August, 1861, under the command of Grenville M. Dodge. It became attached to the Army of the Southwest and took part in some of the most bloody and momentous battles of the Civil War. It was at Pea Ridge, Chickasaw Bayou, Vicksburg, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Resaca, Kenesaw Mountain and Atlanta. The part played by the Fourth at all these points brought added luster to their banner. No wonder the people of the state were delirious with joy when the regiment came home in February, 1864, for a short rest. But it was a shattered remnant of the regiment that reached Des Moines in that month. The ravage of battle had thinned its ranks. Many of the men, including some from Cass County, were in their graves in the Southland. When the regiment reached Des Moines the Legislature held a reception for the fighters and from all parts of the state relatives and friends flocked to Des Moines to welcome the conquering heroes. In April the regiment rejoined the Union forces in the South and became a part of Sherman's army, taking part in the famous "march to the sea". In May, 1865, the regiment participated in the grand review at Washington and was mustered out at Davenport a few days later. It had marched 5000 miles and participated in thirty-six engagements.

Adding to the glory of Cass County was the work of the Twenty-third Regiment. Company I of this regiment was made up exclusively of Cass County men. The company left the county in charge of Capt. James R. Coe. He later resigned because of ill health and was succeeded by Second Lieutenant J. C. Brown. The latter was killed in the fighting at Milliken's Bend on June 7, 1863. He was in turn succeeded by John J. Van Houten who had entered the company as first sergeant. The Twenty-third was at Anderson's Hill, Black River Ridge and all the prominent engagements which preceded the fall of Vicksburg. After the capitulation of Vicksburg the regiment participated in the engagements at Jackson, Ft. Esperenza and Spanish Fort. It was mustered out of the service at Harrisburg, Texas, July 26, 1865.

Cass County's honor roll in the civil war contained the following names: Fred W. Humerick, David Watson, William R. Collette, Japheth Ball, Capt. J. C. Brown, Lieut. G. B. Kilpatrick, Jasper Berry, George Rose, David Wilson, Patrick Archer, Ebenezer Cummings, David Duckett, George W. Hardy, Lyman J. Jardine, Joshua M. Kear, M. L. Littlefield, John A. Mahew, Daniel W. Porter, Hudson Reynolds, William R. Terry, Samuel Wilson, Isah Duckett.

The Fifty-First Iowa Infantry

The Fifty-first Iowa Volunteer Infantry in which most of the Cass County men saw service in the Spanish-American War was largely made up of the old Third Iowa National Guard Regiment. The regiment was mobilized at the State Fair Grounds in Des Moines April 26, 1898; reorganization was effected and the regiment mustered into the national service. The camp was known as Camp McKinley and here the companies recruited to war strength and drilled until June 5th when they departed for San Francisco, arriving on the 10th.

Training continued here at Camp Merritt as a part of the Third Brigade under General Harrison Gray Otis until July 18th when the regiment was joined to the Second Brigade and on July 29th transferred to the Presidio.

Although the peace protocol was signed in August the regiment was retained in the service and continued to drill until November when they were ordered to the Philippines. On November 3 they embarked on the Pennsylvania for the long trip. After a short stop at Honolulu the voyage was resumed and the regiment arrived in Manila on the morning of December 7 after a trip of 6,990 miles.

The regiment remained aboard the Pennsylvania in Manila harbor until December 26th when they were ordered to proceed to Iloilo, capital of the island of Panay, which had been occupied by the insurgents. Arriving there on the 28th the men had hopes of an early landing but were destined to disappointment for the attack on the city was withheld. For another month they remained on board in the harbor of Iloilo and then on January 29th the Pennsylvania proceeded northward, arriving back in Manila bay on the morning of January 31st. On February 5th the last of the troops disembarked.

It was a happy day for the boys when they at last set foot on land after spending more than three months, ninety-three days in all, aboard the Pennsylvania amid the discomforts and monotonous inactivity of ship life. It was an extraordinary fact that in all that time not a death had occurred in the regiment.

The troops settled down again to camp life in their barracks at Cavite, just across the bay from Manila. There were frequent skirmishes with the insurgents during the days that followed until February 18 when the First Battalion was ordered to Manila to participate in the defense of the city. Soon after the other battalions were ordered into action and during the months that followed the Fifty-first Iowa was in the thick of the fighting.

The campaign against the insurgents was long and beset with many complications. The topography of the country was favorable to the guerrilla warfare to which the Filipinos resorted and although they were always unsuccessful against the American forces our boys suffered frequent casualties. Unused to the extreme climate of the islands many succumbed to disease and the ranks were considerably thinned when the regiment returned to Manila on September 6, 1899.

Preparations were immediately begun for the homegoing voyage and on September 22 the regiment sailed on the transport Senator, the last of the U. S. volunteer forces to leave the islands. Stops were made at Nagasaki, Japan, and at Yokohama and shore leave was granted to the men. The regiment reached San Francisco October 22 and was mustered out a few days later.

The Iowa boys of '98 upheld the fighting traditions of the state. No volunteer regiment saw longer or more difficult service and Cass County boys had their full share in the work.

The Cass County Soldiers' Monument

The idea of Cass County soldiers' monument originated with Cyrus B. Osborne of Atlantic, Civil War veteran and pioneer of the county. It was he who in the early part of 1915 suggested that steps be taken to secure the necessary funds for such a memorial.

During the summer the Board of Supervisors took the necessary legal steps to appropriate the unused and accumulating portion of the soldiers' relief tax to the cost of a monument. This could be done under the provision made by the Iowa general assembly. The necessary resolution was adopted by the board on October 9, 1915.

Under the provisions of the resolution the board was to name three of its members to act with three members of the Soldiers' Relief Commission. These six men were to constitute the monument committee having in charge the selection of the site, the employment of an architect and the supervision of the erection of the monument. This committee as originally constituted was composed of A. Biggs, G. A. Goeken, and A. C. Highley of the Board of Supervisors and A. E. Proctor, F. H. Sears, and J. S. Pressnall of the Soldiers' Relief Commission. County Auditor C. E. Kringle was made secretary of the Commission. On the retirement of Messrs. Biggs and Goeken as members of the Board of Supervisors their successors, W. D. Bell and D. J. Bode, became members of the committee. J. S. Pressnall resigned and was succeeded by F. M. Nutter.

The foundation of the monument was laid in the city park in September, 1916. It has been determined that a sum not to exceed $25,000 should be expended for the monument. Edward A. Pryor of Postville, Iowa, was selected as the architect. He supervised the construction of the monument from the laying of the first stone to the placing of the figure on the apex thereof. The contract for the erection of the memorial was given to J. O. Wilken of Atlantic. The foundation was laid by the Kimbalton Construction Co. of Atlantic. The monument was completed in May, 1919, and dedicated July 10, 1919.

As it stands today it is the most beautiful and elaborate county soldiers' monument between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains. It is a memorial to the soldiers and sailors of all wars preceding the world war. The list includes all veterans who entered the service from Cass County, those who are buried in the county, and those living in the county at the time of the erection of the monument. It is a monument to the living as well as the dead. Having been conceived prior to the entrance of America in the world war it is not intended to be the county's memorial to the men who served in the last conflict.

From the speech of Hon. Robert G. Cousins at the dedicatory exercises, July 10, 1919:

"What mind can compass and what lips can utter the thrilling story so eloquently condensed by this majestic column for the generations who so happily behold it, and for all who will enjoy the heritage provided and defended by the men whose names it bears?

"Ah, men and women of this commercial and indulgent age, in the midst of memories of our might and immortal past, and in contemplation of our unexplored but powerfully promising future, how many realize their obligations to our institutions for the sacrifices which they have cost? The forefathers did not find them here, like the air they breathed and the water they drank. They were toiled for and defended, blood bought and so far, thank God, 'untorn by usurpation'.

"A mighty mind once said, 'The centuries look down upon us', but the presence of memories witnessed by this towering testimonial mighty in its grace and beautiful exceedingly, the most conscientious modesty and gratitude may well believe that the centuries lift up their eyes to this crowning figure of justice and transcendant beauty bestowing wreaths upon the heads and memory of those who in the hour of mortal need offered the supreme sacrifice for the dearest hope of all ages—righteous, constitutional, representative government—in which all responsible enlightened citizens participate alike.

"This mighty, graceful monument taking its place as the masterpiece from the Mississippi to the Rockies has been dedicated in far greater fashion than our words can do, and as for the designer, it is well that genius can lift a name so high and worthily while yet he lives.

"The citizens of Cass County, doing a great, deserved and noble honor have unselfishly done much honor to themselves and to the nation."

HOME ACTIVITIES

It is the purpose in the following pages to present the story of the efforts of the home-folks during the long wearisome months when the energies of the nation were directed toward doing everything possible to back up the millions of boys who had donned the khaki and gone forth to war.

It is a splendid and significant fact that those who had to stay behind responded magnificently to every call, and in the following record an attempt has been made to set forth briefly the results of their efforts and to give credit wherever it was conspicuously due. It should be borne in mind, however, that this record has been compiled nearly a year after the conclusion of the war and in many cases it has been impossible to get complete data regarding certain activities or to secure complete lists of committees.

There have undoubtedly been omitted names of active workers and important activities because of the fact that records have been misplaced or destroyed and the complete story thus made unavailable for present purposes. The scope of home war work was so wide and the responses from all sides so unanimous that it would seem that the name of almost every citizen might appear on the honor roll of some activity. But an earnest effort has been made to compile from the present available data a concise record of the citizen-soldier's activities through various organizations and this section is presented in a spirit of appreciation of work well done.

CASS COUNTY

The Red Cross

The aged governor of one of the battered and stricken French provinces said that while the efficient American army had brought to the French a vision of America's greatness it remained for the Red Cross to reveal America's heart.

Probably no bit of pleasantness concerning his army experiences will remain in the heart of the American soldier longer than the memory of the kindly interest displayed for his welfare by the Red Cross wherever he went. Mort particularly does he remember the cups of coffee and sandwiches after he had ridden interminable hours, cramped, cold and uncomfortable aboard a French troop train; and the wounded and sick will never forget the magnificent work of the Red Cross in the hospitals, where representatives were always on hand to comfort and minister to the suffering.

The scope of the Red Cross work was so far-reaching that practically everyone in the army was benefited in some way by its existence. In addition there was the tremendous amount of relief and refugee work throughout Europe,—a work which has won for the American Red Cross the admiration and gratitude of the world.

The Cass County Chapter of the American Red Cross was organized at a public meeting held in Atlantic May 2, 1917, at which Rev. Elias Handy acted as temporary chairman and Mrs. E. C. Crawford, temporary secretary. This meeting resulted in securing a charter for a county organization and soon after the following county officers were chosen:

The people of the county responded magnificently to the work of the Red Cross. County headquarters when work rooms were opened in the Commercial Club at Atlantic and the work of making bandages, surgical dressings and garments began with unlimited volunteers responding and continued unabated until the close of the war.

In the membership drives and campaigns for funds hundreds of workers volunteered their services; the response to appeals for money were met with success on every side and never for a moment was the whole-hearted loyalty of the people for the Red Cross in doubt.

At the close of the Christmas, 1917, campaign 8620 members had been enrolled in the county and the following year approximately the same number was enrolled. During the war approximately $75,000 was contributed to the Red Cross in the county, an amount which emphasizes the liberality of our people.

Many hundreds of citizens throughout the county served in some capacity for this great organization and it is unfortunate that a list of their names is unavailable for publication in this record.

HOME SERVICE SECTION

Early in 1918 the Home Service Section of the Cass County Chapter, American Red Cross, was organized. This department was the last department authorized by the National Red Cross, its object being the care of the families of men in the service in order that no family should suffer or be obliged to lower its standard of living because the man or men of the family were serving their country. The services advised by the National organization were friendly visits, advice, medical and hospital care when necessary, and money relief in the form of allowances, grants or loans.

T. C. Whitemore, chairman; M. C. Cardio, Dr. C. V. Wilder, Mrs. A. A. Gillette and Mrs. John W. Blake constituted the Home Service Committee.

The duties and efforts of this committee were important and far-reaching. Friendly visits were made upon needy families of service men and efforts made to add to their comfort. Cases of delayed allotments and allowances were investigated; applications for allotments and allowances were made and reinstatement in cases of discontinued allowance. In case of death of a soldier the family was assisted in filling out forms for application for War Risk Insurance, applications for compensation for dependents of deceased were made and for funeral expenses and for return of soldier's effects.

In cases where family sought information regarding their sons in the service this committee got in touch with Red Cross authorities wherever the soldier was stationed and secured immediate reports. A multitude of other matters were efficiently handled to the satisfaction of all concerned by this committee.

Could the women of Cass County who sewed and knitted during the war know of the individual joy that their efforts brought to the soldier boys they would feel abundantly repaid for their time and effort. Picture a wounded doughboy clad in a pair of new pajamas, resting peacefully between clean sheets on a fresh, white bed for the first time in many long weary months; his wounds swathed in sterile bandages made by tender and loving hands back home; though his wounds pain him his spirit is happy in the sweet revelry of comfortable surroundings and he drops asleep to dream of mother, sisters, sweetheart and home.

The Cass County Committee of the Council of National Defense

The County Council of Defense was the hub to the wheel of war activities in Cass County. Being the only organization in the county created officially for the sole purpose of carrying on the several activities incident to the prosecution of the war it naturally became the center about which all these many activities revolved.

The council officially came into existence through the appointment of its members by Governor William L. Harding on May 29, 1917. The members were chosen from all parts of the county and represented all political faiths and religious beliefs.

Immediately after the creation of the council by the Governor the members gathered at the Commercial Club in Atlantic and organized. At this meeting there was a general discussion of the duties of the council and a tentative program agreed upon. This program included among other things the searching out and investigation of instances of disloyalty or lukewarmness toward the prosecution of the war.

As a result of the activities of the council along these lines creditable results were obtained. Especially was the council an instrument of good and powerful leverage in the several loan drives. Through its power many delinquent residents of the county were brought to see the light and loosen their purse strings. Never, however, did it seek to force the buying of bonds on any person beyond that individual's financial ability to buy.

One of the big aids which the council proved to be in the carrying on of the war activities was the moral influence which it possessed and the impetus which it gave to the spirit of patriotism in the county. This influence was marked. Whenever the stamp of the council was placed on any of the several activities that particular activity immediately took on new life and became a success. In the spreading of patriotic sentiment throughout Cass County no other agency did so much as the defense council. Every member responded heartily to the calls placed upon him.

In the work of investigating instances of patriotic delinquency the council created later another and distinct body known as the Committee of Military Affairs. This committee held numerous sessions and never was a summons from it disregarded. Its work in the placing of feet of disloyalists in the path of true Americanism was performed in a firm yet reasonable manner and a number of persons who had previously refused to perform their part in the various war activities were made to see the error of their ways.

As an aid to the work of the County Council of Defense there were organized in each of the sixteen townships and in several of the towns of the county, auxiliary councils. These affiliated with the parent council and greatly enhanced its power. The total membership in these associated councils reached several hundred. Together with the parent council these associated councils made a tremendously powerful body of earnest and patriotic citizenship. Its influence was felt in a hundred ways and in every part of the county.

Liberty Loans

Men, material and money are the three necessary elements to the waging of successful warfare. During the summer of 1917 after the selective draft had made provisions for unlimited numbers of men and contracts for enormous stores of supplies had been let, it became evident that the national treasury would have to be replenished.

It was foreseen that even the increased revenue derived from war taxes of all kinds would not be adequate to take care of the ever-increasing army expenditures and the treasury department found it necessary to launch the first Liberty Loan campaign.

The task of raising the first loan and also the second which followed a few months later was undertaken by the banks of the country. In Cass County under the direction of Mr. T. H. Whitney and Mr. P. P. Breheny the several banks carried on publicity campaigns urging the people to subscribe for bonds. The banks themselves subscribed for a large share of the quota.

But during the first two campaigns the people of the county were not thoroughly aroused to the need of buying bonds and as a consequence the county's quota was not raised in either campaign although nearly a half million dollars were subscribed each time.

As the war progressed government expenditures increased to a degree unheard of in the history of our country and it became necessary to float the Third Liberty Loan. The banks had responded splendidly to the appeal for help during the first two campaigns but in order to broaden the scope of interest and increase the number of individual bond-holders a new plan was promulgated. State liberty loan chairmen were appointed who in turn appointed district leaders. Robert Wallace of Council Bluffs, head of the ninth district, appointed M. P. Conway of Atlantic to act as chairman of Cass County.

Then preparatory to the launching of the third campaign Mr. Conway appointed ward and township chairmen. Committees were selected and held meetings at which plans for the campaign were perfected. Each township and city was assessed a certain portion of the quota and in turn each individual's share was approximated. The campaign was well advertised;four minute speakers were pressed into service and after weeks of intensive preparation the Third Loan campaign was opened with a rush.

The county quota was $497,350 and it was evident early in the campaign that the amount would be easily raised. The patriotic impulses of the people had been stimulated by the work of the American army in France and they responded liberally to the appeals of the workers. The campaign progressed with increasing enthusiasm both on the part of the workers and the subscribers and the final tally showed that more than double the quota had been raised; 263% of the amount asked had been subscribed.

The result was gratifying to all patriotic citizens of the county. In only a comparatively few cases had it been necessary to use more than the ordinary appeal to get subscriptions for the amount expected. These cases were diplomatically handled by the Committee on Military Affairs of the Council of Defense with the result that in each case the party in question was persuaded to purchase his quota of bonds.

The same committees made the canvass for the Fourth Liberty Loan in October, 1918. Despite the crop failure in the county and the fact that the quota was more than double that of the previous loan it was oversubscribed, the total reaching 107 per cent of the quota.

With the war over the Treasury Department found it necessary to float the fifth loan to take care of army expenses until demobilization. It was named the Victory Loan in honor of the successful conclusion of the war. Again the county organization was called for work. The lack of wartime enthusiasm to give the campaign the necessary impetus was probably responsible for the failure to raise the full quota although most of the committees did excellent work. However, the sum total of the bonds sold during the five campaigns exceeded the county's quota for the five loans by many thousands of dollars. Cass County's record in the Liberty Loan campaigns was more than one hundred per cent.

It required a tremendous effort to sell nearly five million dollars worth of bonds; it is a record of which our citizens can be proud. All who participated in any way can point with pride to their achievement. The men and women of the various committees gave freely of their strength and time without heed of recompense or glory in the smallest way. The citizens purchased liberally that the big job might be carried on to a glorious finish. While the boys were over there doing their particular job the folks at home were busy raising the cash and they did their bit magnificently.

The Four Minute Men

The Four Minute Men was a branch of the Committee on Public Information appointed by the President, whose members were commissioned as official speakers in behalf of the government to impart official information and facts to the people.

The speakers appeared chiefly before motion picture theater audiences in every city of the country and their talks were limited to four minutes each. Later during the war the scope of the department was enlarged to include ministers, who were commissioned to speak before their congregations on official subjects. The chief service, however, was rendered in the motion picture theaters.

In Cass County the Four Minute Men organization was started in May, 1917, and during the war very effective work was performed throughout the county in disseminating information during the various campaigns and drives. The speakers appeared in the campaigns for the various Liberty Loans, for the Salvation Army drive, for the United War Work drive, Red Cross campaigns, and in addition thereto assisted the government in its campaign for food conservation.

T. C. Whitmore was chosen county chairman and gave much time and effort in perfecting the county organization. Following is the personnel of the Four Minute Men of Cass County: Atlantic—C. B. Clovis, B. A. Goodspeed, John J. Rapp, H. B. Swan, H. O. Spelman, J. K. Driver and P. N. Bennett, city chairman; Griswold—T. J. Bryant, chairman, and R. H. Bell; Anita—E. S. Holton, chairman, Harold Ziegler and B. D. Forshay; Massena—George Cruise, chairman, and Wray Wilson; Marne—Ray Eusden.

When the organization was disbanded December 24, 1918, and the chairmen honorably discharged, the President wrote a special letter to the Four Minute Men thanking them and expressing his personal and official gratitude for the service that had been rendered by them.

CHAIRMAN, VICE-CHAIRMAN AND COMMITTEE HEADS OF WOMAN'S COMMITTEE

Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense

Early in 1918 the necessity of banding together the women of the country for war work became apparent and the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense was organized. Mrs. C. G. Walner was appointed chairman of Cass County and Mrs. B. D. Forshay of Anita, Mrs. Hugh Reinig of Griswold, Mrs. Wray Wilson of Massena, and Miss Mayme Finley of Atlantic were selected as vice-chairmen, each having charge of the four townships in their respective corners of the county. Mrs. A. A. Emigh of Atlantic was named secretary. The vice-chairmen appointed a chairman for each of her four townships and they in turn chose a chairman for each school district in the township.

Previous to the time the organization had been effected, however, the women of this county had done considerable pioneer work in carrying out the suggestions of the National Food Administration. Several hundred signatures to the Hoover Food Pledge Cards had been secured. This card was in effect an agreement by the signer to abide by the rulings of the Food Administration and aid in the carrying out of the program for national conservation of food. The woman's committee completed this work and a total of 1500 signatures to the Hoover Pledge cards were secured. Another important feature of the ladies' food conservation work was the food exhibit at the county fair of 1918.

In this connection the county chairman and the four vice-chairmen were appointed assistant county food administrators and did excellent work throughout the year in that capacity. Mrs. L. T. Spangler who acted as chairman of the city of Atlantic in the Food Pledge Card campaign was appointed reporter for the National Food Administration and made weekly reports on the prices of food commodities in the county.

The Woman's Committee offered its services for the Third Liberty Loan Campaign and the committees made an active canvass in conjunction with the committees of the Council of Defense. The towns of the county were organized on the block sergeant system which centered the responsibility of each committeeman to a certain area. Mrs. O. O. Conley was the county chairman for the loan drive work, and Miss Amanda Wissler, chairman for the city of Atlantic. The ladies gave unsparingly of their time and efforts and aided very materially in assuring the county's quota. The committee extended its work to the Fourth Loan Drive and to that of the Victory Loan.

On April 6, 1918, a National Weighing and Measuring Babies Campaign was inaugurated to continue for a year. This movement came as a result of the discovery of a high rate of defectives among the young men of draft age. Many of these defects were of a remedial nature had they been treated in time and the movement proposed a national examination of all children under five years of age and treatment for those found defective. Physicians in the county conducted the examinations free of charge and committees under the direction of Mrs. Willis Miller of Atlantic made a canvass and survey of the county.

The work of the Home and Allied Relief Committee was carried on under the direction of Miss Amanda Wissler. This committee handled all the relief work of the organization that was correlated with that of the Red Cross and other organizations engaged in relief work.

The Woman's Committee conducted the county drive for Red Cross nurses under the direction of Miss Mary Adams. The county's quota was eleven nurses. Seven were enrolled although several of these were never called for active service. Thirteen entered training during the year in hospitals of the county.

An important feature of the Woman's Committee's work was the Home Food Demonstration campaign in the interests of food conservation. Miss Lucile McRoberts of Charles City spent three months in the county in charge of these demonstrations and during June, July and August of 1918 forty-two demonstrations were held in homes, schoolhouses and public meeting places. Miss Jennie Ward had charge of the work of arranging the demonstrations.

The educational campaign in connection with the food conservation work was carried on very largely through the excellent work of the four-minute women. This committee was composed of Miss Anna Temple, chairman, and Mrs. Harold Schrauger, Miss Gretchen Crawford, Miss Edith O'Connell, Mrs. L. C. Allender, Miss Carrie Wilken and Mrs. Dr. Thompson. These ladies gave addresses in theaters, churches, school houses and at many other gatherings and performed valuable services for the cause.

The Local Board of Cass County

Soon after the passage of the Selective Draft Law a draft board for each county in the state was nominated by the governor and appointed by the President of the United States. After the June, 1917, registration the local members were instructed to organize under the designation "The Local Board of Cass County".

The organization was effected July 3, 1917. W. A. McKee was chosen Chairman; C. E. Kringel, Secretary, and Dr. C. L. Campbell, physician member.

This Local Board was assisted in its work by the following:

Legal Advisory Board—Judge J. B. Rockafellow, Atty. C. B. Clovis, and Atty. B. A. Goodspeed.

Associate members Advisory Board—Eighty-six men from all parts of the county.

Twenty registration boards of two men each.

Additional Medical Examiners—Practically all the physicians, surgeons and dentists of the county.

District Advisory Board—Cass and Adair Counties: Dr. C. E. Thompsen, Chairman; Dr. W. S. Greenleaf, Secretary; Dr. U. S. Mullins, Eye and Ear Specialist; L. C. Allender, Dental Specialist.

Government Appeal Agent—Atty. T. C. Whitemore.

Corps of Clerks.

The Local Board had in charge the tremendous task of registering the men of draft age in the three different registrations. This was only made possible through the magnificent response and patriotic coöperation of officials who served on the various registration boards of the county.

But with the first registration over the work of the Local Board was just beginning. There remained the sending of calls, physical examinations, the hearing of exemption claims and then finally the selection of the various quotas. It is to the credit of the Cass County Local Board that its members worked faithfully, persistently and fairly in the face of all their difficulties and finished the job with everyone satisfied.

The county's first draft quota was announced July 20, 1917, and consisted of 140 men. A call was sent out for 280 men to appear before the examining board during the three-day period beginning August 2.

This number was insufficient and 300 more were summoned to appear August 15, 16, 17.

Following is the result of these two calls:

Failed to appear	14
Physically acceptable	403
Physically rejected	161
Claimed exemption	221
Claims allowed	58
Disallowed	163

On June 5, 1917, 1743 men registered. Later scattering registrations brought the total up to 1761.

Tabulation of first registration:

The first increment of Cass County's quota was a call for seven men Sept. 4, 1917. List of different increments follows:

FINAL CLASSIFICATION

	June, 1917	June and August, 1918	September 1918	Total
Inducted into service by Board	526	53	59	638
Remaining in Class 1	135	60	410	605
2	127	18	153	298
3	205	7	73	285
4	524	9	376	909
5	244	23	69	336
Ages 37 to 45 not classified			1158	1158
	1761	170	2298	4229

Fifty-eight men were to have gone to Camp Dodge on November 12 and eighty-three men to Ft. McArthur, Calif., on November 14, 1918, but the signing of the armistice cancelled the calls.

Four registrations, total of 4229 men.

The Fuel Committee

With the advent of a fuel shortage in the fall of 1917 it became necessary for the government to take drastic measures to guarantee an equitable distribution of the supply. As a result the fuel commission came into existence with committees in practically every town and city in the country.

In Cass County the following committee was appointed: David Hope, J. B. Jones and J. D. Goff of Atlantic, Charles Shaw, Anita; George Cruise, Massena, and H. K. Forsythe of Griswold.

The dealers in fuel were patriotic and the work of the committee was greatly facilitated by the willingness of the dealers to comply with all fuel regulations. At no time was there any serious conflict between the committee and the fuel dealers. The committee also found the consumers anxious and willing to comply with any and all suggestions made.

This committee served throughout the war and deserve much praise for their faithful and efficient work.

The Food Administration

The organization of a food administration for Cass County was perfected shortly after our entrance into the war. State Food Administrator J. A. Deems of Burlington appointed Sam Berry and Ross Lang administrators for Cass County.

The work consisted of local interpretation and enforcement of the rulings of the National Food Administration and required a large amount of detail and personal investigation. Many cases of violation of rules were reported but very few actual violations were discovered when an investigation was made.

Of far-reaching importance to the community was the work of the Price Interpreting Committee, acting under the jurisdiction of the Food Administration. This committee was composed of representatives of the wholesalers, retailers and consumers and met weekly to discuss local price conditions and fix the minimum and maximum local prices on staple food commodities.

The committee was furnished weekly reports from Washington relating to general price conditions and they then made the necessary local adaptations, fixing reasonable margins of profit, thus rendering impossible any attempt at food profiteering.

Dale Morrow was the local Assistant State Merchant Reporter. His work had to do with transmitting to the 190 merchants of the county the rulings of the food commission where it affected the merchants. He was assisted in this by the Assistant County Food Administrators.

George Lang was named county chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Committee and Ross Camblin chairman for the city of Atlantic. Their work consisted of the administration of Food Administration regulations in so far as they affected restaurants and hotels.

The Y. M. C. A.

The first county drive for welfare work funds in the World War was made by the Y. M. C. A. in October of 1917 in which a total of $17,067 was raised, several thousand dollars more than the quota for this county.

M. B. Nelson was named county chairman and Harry Cavenaugh was selected as treasurer. At a meeting of workers from various parts of the county in Atlantic which was called in August by the chairman plans were laid for the campaign and a systematic canvass of the county was made by the committees appointed at this time.

This campaign was in connection with the raising of a ten million dollar fund by the Y. M. C. A. for its war work. Beginning with a few huts in army camps this work grew until there were hundreds of Red Triangle huts in the camps and cantonments in the United States and likewise scattered over France wherever American troops were quartered. The American soldier boy was practically never without the Y. M. C. A. and a splendid service was performed by it.

The Y. W. C. A.

A very important work was carried on by the Young Women's Christian Association during the war in providing hostess houses with canteens at army camps and looking after the interests of the women war workers. When the soldier's mother, sister or sweetheart came to camp to visit him the Y. W. C. A. provided a comfortable place near camp where he could entertain them and the hostess houses provided for a need that no other organization attempted to meet.

At home and abroad the Y. W. C. A. did much good work in providing rest rooms for women welfare workers and nurses and in many ways contributed to their comfort and happiness.

While there was no Y. W. C. A. organization in this community the ladies of the county felt the need of assisting in carrying on the important war work and they perfected an organization to assist in raising funds for the Association war work.

Mrs. W. F. Graham was made county chairman; Mrs. P. I. Appleman, secretary, and Miss Mary Adams, treasurer. City and township chairmen were appointed and they in turn selected school district workers. Participating in the national drive for funds in December, 1917, this organization raised $1709, exceeding the quota by $559. It was a distinctive effort deserving the commendation of all who participated.

No other drive was made until the United War Work drive of 1918 in which the Y. W. C. A. quota was included with the others and here again the women of the county did splendid work in helping raise the quota.

The Knights of Columbus

The initial effort of the Knights of Columbus of Cass County in war welfare work was made in July, 1917, when Atlantic Council 1164 with 281 members raised $432 in the national campaign among Knights of Columbus members for a million dollars to be expended for war work.

This national effort resulted in the building of welfare houses in the army camps and cantonments and the employment of a large force of secretaries to look after the work. Later the activities were extended to aid in looking after our army in France and providing comforts and welfare homes for the boys over there.

This widening in the scope of the work made necessary another campaign for funds and in October and November of 1917 another campaign among Catholic people generally was directed under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. Committees under the direction of T. P. Breheny, chairman, from the local council, made a concerted canvass of the county, raising $2182.

Later the organization of the National Catholic War Work Council was perfected, taking charge of all welfare work and the Knights of Columbus coöperated under its direction in the United War Work campaign and other war activities.

The Public Library

During the time the United States was engaged in war the government used the Public Libraries as important agents for general publicity. The pamphlets on food conservation sent from Washington and Ames were carefully put into the hands of leaders and directors of the conservation work. Recipes for war cooking were constantly being distributed through the library and posters urging the people to conserve were prominently displayed.

Special emphasis was placed on children's work during the war. One of the earliest efforts was the display of a beautiful picture of Joan of Arc which led to many repetitions of the story of her life to the children. Special efforts were made to keep them interested and instructed through the display of bright bulletins and posters. Instruction was given in knitting for the children and they were then taken to the Red Cross rooms for encouragement and further work.

Throughout the war the library was made a place of meeting for committees and an effort put forth to furnish them with desired data. At all times the best and most reliable books and information on the war was made easily accessible to the reader and articles of timely interest in the newspapers and magazines made available.

The call for books by the American Library Association was answered by the library. At one drive 2500 volumes were collected from over the county and sent to France. In addition hundreds of magazines were shipped to Ft. Des Moines and other camps, and magazines were given to soldiers leaving and passing through on trains. Throughout the war Miss Mary Adams, the librarian, did splendid work in directing the efforts of the library along the line of war activities.

United War Work Campaign

The World War saw before its close united action along all lines and perhaps no other event stands out as conspicuously as does the United War Work campaign when welfare workers of all creeds joined hands in a common purpose. The seven war welfare agencies—Salvation Army, American Library Association, War Camp Community Service, Jewish War Council, National Catholic War Council, Young Women's Christian Association and Young Men's Christian Association—all united in response to a request of President Wilson in raising the necessary funds for the conduct of their work for the American soldiers, sailors and marines.

M. B. Nelson was chosen chairman for the drive in Cass County, T. P. Breheny, vice-chairman, and O. R. Patrick, treasurer. The various organizations were represented on the committee as follows: Y. M. C. A., M. B. Nelson; National Catholic War Council, T. P. Breheny; Y. W. C. A., Mrs. W. F. Graham; Salvation Army, Mrs. C. S. Relyea; Jewish Welfare Board, I. Washer; American Library Association, Miss Mary Adams.

At the initial meeting of the committee plans were perfected for the campaign and it was decided to ask the Liberty Loan organization to make the canvass. Chairman Conway of the latter organization kindly agreed to the arrangement and in November, 1918, the canvass was made. Despite the fact that the county had suffered a crop failure and that the campaign was made very shortly after the Fourth Liberty Loan the people responded splendidly and $63,590.98 was raised, making 141 percent of the county's quota.

The amount raised throughout the country in the United War Work drive was $170,500,000 and was distributed among the various organizations as follows:

Y. M. C. A.	$100,000,000.00
Y. W. C. A.	15,000,000.00
Knights of Columbus	30,000,000.00
Jewish Welfare Board	3,500,000.00
War Camp Community Service	15,000,000.00
American Library Association	3,500,000.00
Salvation Army	3,500,000.00
Total	$170,000,000.00

Cass County as usual went over the top in the United War Work drive, raising 141 percent of its quota. The amounts contributed by wards and townships follow:

Atlantic	$15,428.55
Bear Grove	2,133.55
Benton	1,820.95
Brighton	2,324.40

Total	$63,590.98

The American Legion

Nearly a thousand delegates of all ranks from private to brigadier general met in Paris, France, on March 15, 1919, for the purpose of obtaining the views of the service men abroad on the general proposition of organizing the patriotism of the men of the service so that it might not be lost to America after the war.

There attended the meeting representatives of all combat divisions and every S. O. S. branch of the American Expeditionary Forces. A tentative constitution was outlined and it was suggested that the new organization be known as the American Legion although no permanent action was taken in the matter. An executive committee of one hundred members was appointed to take steps to call another meeting in St. Louis in May.

At the St. Louis meeting May 8, 1919, Henry D. Lindsay of Texas was chosen permanent chairman and the convention ratified the tentative constitution drawn up in Paris. An executive committee of one hundred was appointed to act in conjunction with the Paris committee in proceeding with the further national organization of the American Legion through state branches and local posts. The delegates voted to hold the First Annual Convention in Minneapolis, Minn., November 10, 11, 12.

The following preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion states clearly the purposes for which it was organized:

PREAMBLE

For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes:

To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

ATLANTIC POST No. 43

Steps were taken toward organizing a Legion Post in Atlantic late in May, 1919, and on June 9 a charter was granted with the following men as charter members: W. C. Williams, Jr., G. H. Weidemann, Ralph W. Cockshoot, Paul E. Fackler, Glenn A. Jones, Mervin A. Jersild, Frank B. Spence, Jr., Chris O. Christensen, George W. Dexter, Kenneth R. Rowley, Clyde E. Butler, Raymond P. Dungan, George W. Applegate, Harry B. Swan, Wright Hedges, Tom B. Bonham.

A meeting was held on July 9 at which the organization was perfected and the following officers chosen for the ensuing year: Post Commander, Clarence A. Anderson; Vice-Commander, George Dexter; Post Adjutant, Tom P. Bonham; Post Finance Officer, Carl Kringle; Post Historian, Paul Fackler; Post Chaplain, Clarence Bigelow.

This Post is known as Atlantic Post No. 43 of the American Legion of Iowa and on November 11, 1919, had 304 members.

ANITA POST No. 210

The Anita Post had its beginning in a meeting of about forty service men at the Masonic Hall, September 8, 1919, at which time it was decided to organize and petition for a charter.

The charter was issued September 24, 1919, and on October 3 the first meeting was held at which the organization was perfected and the following officers elected:

Post Commander, Glen A. Roe; Vice-Commander, M. C. Ferrell; Post Adjutant, J. W. Martin; Post Finance Officer, Hobart E. Newton; Master of Arms, George O. Smithers; Post Chaplain, William T. Biggs; Post Historian, M. E. Burkhart.
